

Another Look at the Cross

R. L. Werry, 1893

$\text{♩} = 105$

1. There's a voice I hear, and it calls me near To the Sav - ior's bleed - ing side; And it
 2. There is One a - bove, look - ing down in love, On a world deep sunk in sin; And I
 3. There's a hand stretched out un - to souls in doubt, And it saves from sin and woe; In His
 4. O the bit - ter cries, and the long - ing eyes, That we dai - ly hear and see; For our
 5. O the joy to stand on the gold - en strand, Right be - fore the great white throne; There to says to me, "You may now be free, If you plunge be - neath the crim - son tide;"

Refrain

 hear Him call to His child - ren all: "Who will go and bring the lost ones in?"
 riv - en side is a fount - ain wide, Where the vil - est of the vile may go. O, I'll love they plead, and our help they need; Shall we sav - iors of the lost ones be?
 meet some soul we have helped to the goal, And to hear the Sav - ior say, "Well done."

take a - no - ther look at the cross of Cal - va - ry, For sure - ly He can cleanse by the pre - cious blood; There is pur - i - ty and power, There is vic - tory ev - ery hour, When we're liv - ing 'neath the smile of God.