What they said about the first edition

"For those who use The Presbyterian Hymnal of 1990 or its ecumenical version, Hymns, Psalms and Spiritual Songs, this unique book will be invaluable" (The Presbyterian Outlook).

". . . I found the scriptural and topical indexes to be wonderful resources. . . . a valuable addition to any worship planner's bookshelf" (The Hymn: A Journal of Congregational Song).

"This book . . . will be of great help in selecting hymns for worship appropriate to scriptures or topics" (The American Organist).

"Many times I have yearned for a fuller index to The Presbyterian Hymnal, so that I could mine the riches of our hymnal in sermon preparation. That yearning has been met in Hymnsearch" (Reformed Liturgy and Music).

Helps for Upgrading the Congregation's Song 433

BY WAY OF INTRODUCTION

HYMNSEARCH is a book of indexes intended, in the first place, to aid all who lead in worship and who use The Presbyterian Hymnal of 1990 or its ecumenical version: Hymns, Psalms and Spiritual Songs. To the extent that the content of other hymnals matches that of The Presbyterian Hymnal, the indexes will be found helpful in connection with such hymnals as well.

The centerpiece of the book is the SCRIPTURE INDEX, in which hymns are suggested for every passage in The Revised Common Lectionary of 1992, excepting the deuterocanonical ones, as well as for a very large number of passages not included in the lectionary. (The Biblical text used was that of the New Revised Standard Version.)

A second major resource is the INDEX OF TOPICS AND CATEGORIES, an expanded version of that kind of index found in most hymnals.

A number of factors are involved in choosing appropriate hymns for a given worship service. The intent of the compiler of these indexes has been to provide a generous listing of relevant suggestions for a given text or topic, leaving it to the discriminating user to take it from there. (Not every hymn in a given service has to "match" the text/topic! Hymns and Psalms of generic praise, thanksgiving, and petition will always be included in judicious planning. And no matter how appropriate a text, its tune must also be taken into account; no service should include more than one tune that is unfamiliar to the congregation.)

A third, much shorter help provided is the LITURGICAL INDEX, in which the sequence of rubrics approximates the order followed in The Service for the Lord's Day.

A fourth resource is the REVERSE INDEX (from hymn to Scripture), which will prove very handy on those occasions when the Scriptural background of a hymn is sought. Only those Scripture texts are cited that are deemed to bear close relation to a given hymn; thus some hymns are not mentioned, there being no Scriptural text suggested by them.

Other, still shorter indexes, are those provided for:

- Alternate Arrangements of Hymns
- Canons/Rounds
- Descants
- Hymns in Languages Other Than English
- Persons Mentioned in Hymns
- Places Mentioned in Hymns

Many suggestions are stanza-specific; 423.2, for instance, refers to the second stanza of hymn number 423. This does not of itself mean that the other stanzas are judged inappropriate. On the other hand, the singing or reading of single stanzas at certain points in the service by choir or congregation has much to commend it. A refrain is indicated by the letter "R" following the hymn number.

References to the Service Music (numbers 565–605) are included among the suggestions made.

The church's treasury of congregational song is a rich resource for the development of sermons, prayers and other parts of the worship service. Hymns very often spell out the implications of the Biblical message; in not a few cases they reveal possible interpretations of, and responses to, Scripture. (On occasion, a hymn may distract from or even distort. Think of all the hymns that wrap Christmas and Epiphany, shepherds and Magi, into one package! See under "Some Comments and Suggestions" in the rear of this volume.) The devotions of individuals and families can be greatly enriched by an intelligent use of the hymnal in conjunction with the Bible and other resources. Hymns may be either read or sung. It is to be hoped that the indexes provided in this volume may also facilitate this wider use of the hymnal, one that goes far beyond the selection of a few hymns for Sunday's worship service.

The compiler wishes to express his appreciation once again to his son Matthew for expert assistance in the computer department, and to musician-wife Rosanne for her manifold help and encouragement. He is also grateful to all those church musicians and pastors who, by word of mouth, contributed to the depletion of the first and second editions of Hymnsearch. A special word of appreciation is due Mary Collins and others of the staff of the Montreat Book Store, and to several former officers of the Presbyterian Association of Musicians.

SCRIPTURE INDEX

A WORD OF EXPLANATION

Other things being equal, more-inclusive Biblical references precede less-inclusive (thus, for instance, 1.9-23 precedes 1.9-16). Suggestions given under the more-inclusive are not normally repeated under the less-inclusive, except to indicate a specific stanza or particular appropriateness. When references include two or more chapters of the Bible, a "+" appears to the left of the references, for instance: +2.5—3.16. In such a case, suggestions made under this reference would not be repeated in any following references to chapter two. In some cases, suggestions are made for whole books of the Bible (Jonah, for instance), for rather extensive passages (Genesis 37—50, for instance), and for whole Psalms and whole chapters of other books.

To secure the maximum number of relevant suggestions, the user will want to scan both upward from the specific passage, to ascertain what suggestions for the latter may be listed under the more-inclusive passages, and downward, for any passages that may include a part of the specific passage, thus, for instance, downward from 12.1-3 to 12.1,4.

In many cases, hymns judged to be especially appropriate have been so noted by their titles being printed in bold type. Those hymns, at least in part, based directly on Biblical passages are, in addition to being named in bold type, also given an asterisk to the right of the hymn title.

ERRATA IN THE PRESBYTERIAN HYMNAL

In at least some printings of The Presbyterian Hymnal, the following corrections should be made:

- Hymn 169, 3rd stanza, last line: read "works" for "words."
- Hymn 262, 4th line of music: the 3rd note should be "C."
- Hymn 289.3.3: Insert comma between "still" and "small."
- Hymn 338 is not an "African-American spiritual," but text and music by Marvin V. Frey, 1936. See The Hymn, July 1996, p. 60.
- Hymn 391: Meter here and in index should be 7.7.7.7.7.
- Hymn 400, English refrain: replace first period with comma.
- Hymn 430, note at bottom of page: for "150" read "155."
- Hymn 474, 4th stanza, 2nd line: read "borne" for "born."
- Hymns 523, 524, and 525: for ordination only, not also for confirmation.
- Hymn 554: Scripture reference should be Genesis 1-2.
- Topical Index, page 693, middle column, 6th listing: read "393" for "392."
- Index of Authors, Translators, and Sources, p. 679, Huber: remove 191.
- Index of First Lines and Common Titles, page 715, right-hand column, 3rd entry: read "Nacht" for "Hacht."
- Page 714, left-hand column: after "Memorial Acclamation," strike the number "566."

SOME COMMENTS & SUGGESTIONS

Hymns and Psalm paraphrases occasionally disappoint; they fail to pass the test, at least our test, of faithfulness to Scripture and orthodoxy. Even so, they may be used, and profitably. The liability posed by such hymns and Psalm paraphrases can be turned into an asset by calling attention in the sermon to precisely the waywardness of the texts sung or to be sung. Thus can gains be made on all sides.

Hymn 3: This hymn reflects Isa 40.1-5 as related to the ministry of John the Baptist. See Mt 3.1-12 & par.

Hymns 62-69: It is only the visit of the Magi (with shepherds in one case!) that is celebrated in the Epiphany hymns in the hymnal. Only one of these hymns (no. 68) reveals understanding of what may well be Matthew's central point: that Jesus is the hope of the world!
And the crucial words in this hymn have been altered! In last line of 4th stanza, the translation's original may be restored by substituting for "Glad tidings of our God to bring," "and Gentiles to his crib to bring."

Hymn 72.2: The notion of Jesus' sharing repentance is rather rare.

Hymn 105: Even though it is an article in the Creed, the resurrection of believers is very rarely mentioned in hymns. "This joyful Eastertide" is a splendid hymn that includes reference to our resurrection, married to this same wonderful tune in Hymnbook 1982/The Hymnal 1982.

Hymn 132.2: "Flesh" predicated of ascended Christ? Church is "eternal"?

Hymn 133: This hymn contains the essence of the texts of the Roman Catholic Mass. See also nos. 566 and 575.

Hymn 148: It should be borne in mind that the context of this triumphalist hymn (see Phil 2.1-11) has to do with humility!

"Hymns" 158-258: The metrical Psalm versions vary as to faithfulness to the respective Psalms.
Also, some of the versions give less of the Psalm than what is indicated in the captions.

"Hymn" 159.3: "Stay"?

"Hymn" 162.3: "Less than gods." Compare Psalm 8.

"Hymn" 184.5: "Our own God" rather rare.

"Hymn" 187.6: "His bones," as RSV, rather than "their bones"? See John 19.36.

"Hymn" 192.2: "This age" unusual. Relation of st. 4 to Psalm?

"Hymn" 203 (Ps 67), 2nd and 4th stanzas: pluralizing "people" would be more consistent both with the Biblical text and with this version's "nations." See also the same Psalm at 202.

"Hymn" 211.3: "Special health"? "Sin"? See Psalm 90.10.

"Hymn" 217, 2nd stanza, last word: reading "peoples" instead of "people" would achieve greater consistency with both the text of the Biblical Psalm and that of this version.

"Hymn" 220.4: "Truth" here ="faithfulness." See Psalm 100.5 in NRSV.

"Hymn" 224, 4th stanza, 3rd line: If "At your hand" sounds strange, substitute "From your hand."

"Hymn" 253.2: "Truth" here="faithfulness."

"Hymn" 271, 1st stanza, 1st line: If "things" seems strange, "works" (found in many hymnals) may be substituted.

Hymn 280: Stanza 2 takes us into "crisis" or "revivalist" theology, and probably for that reason this hymn was not included in hymnals of the "northern" Presbyterian Church before the joint hymnal of 1955, in which this tune was given as a 2nd tune, making for an irresistible combination. This compiler, in 1994, wrote the following stanza (not copyrighted) to name the otherwise generic grace, as well as to counter any notion of "cheap grace:"

You ask me how this grace I know,
This grace of which I sing?
'Tis found in Christ, to whom I owe
My life, my everything.

Hymn 296, refrain, 2nd line: Instead of "A new law, God's new alliance," there may be read "God's new covenant, a new law." This rendering supplies the Biblically and theologically important word "covenant," the English equivalent of the Spanish "alianza."

Hymn 323: Very rare! "Holy" Spirit is a revision of the author's original language.

Hymn 345.5: For other interpretations of "still, small voice," see commentaries on 1 Ki 19.11-13.

Hymn 386, 4th stanza, 2nd line: a colon may be substituted for the semi-colon.

Hymn 398.2: "Second blessing theology"?

Hymn 441: In the New Testament, "kingdom" and "church" are not equated.

Hymns 445 to 453: Note that the rubric "Church: Triumphant" is used to cover some hymns traditionally placed under the rubric "Church: Militant."

Hymn 457: Apparently this is (a translation of) John Calvin's (?) revision of 5 of 8 stanzas of an 11th century hymn to the Virgin Mary, Salve Regina, by Hermannus Contractus. See The Hymn, April 1994.

Hymn 464 (music), 4th system: Organist disregard tie in bass line, articulate "g" both times.

Hymn 488: Thomas Olivers' evangelical text, "The God of Abraham Praise," may be found in the Lutheran Book of Worship (1978), Hymnbook 1982/The Hymnal 1982 (1985), and The United Methodist Hymnal (1989).

Hymn 492: A baptismal hymn for any Lord's Day service!

Hymns 523, 524 and 525: some may wish to consider these as appropriate only for ordination ("laying on of hands"), not for confirmation also.

Hymn 525: Though inspired by Isaiah 6.8-9a, this hymn moves in a very different direction from what is found in Isaiah.

Hymns 531-534: Hymns for the marriage service, wedding. Hymn 531 appropriate far beyond the marriage service.

Hymn 559: A very free translation of a 1625 poem in all likelihood by the compiler of the Nederlantsche Gedenck-Clanck (1626), Adrian Valerius.

Hymn 563, last phrase: Relation of "true to our native land" to "true to our God"?

In the Index of First Lines and Common Titles, the addition of the following alternate titles may be of help to those more accustomed to them than to those given in The Presbyterian Hymnal:

How Brightly Shines the Morning Star	69
Hail to the Lord's Anointed	205
O God, Our Help in Ages Past	210
What God Ordains Is Always Right	284
O Lord My God!	467
Humbly I Adore Thee	519

In the same index, "Have Mercy, Lord, on Me," no. 395, is listed only under "Take Pity, Lord," and "Piedad."

Of great benefit for all who are interested in hymns and congregational singing is membership in The Hymn Society in the United States and Canada, 745 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, MA 02215-1401. Tel. 800-THE HYMN, FAX 617-353-7322. E-mail hymnsoc@bu.edu. Web www.hymnsociety.org. Among other things, the Society publishes a quarterly, occasional bulletins, and papers, and holds an annual conference every summer.

One consideration to bear in mind when wishing to introduce a congregation to new material is the fact that several tunes, including some of the very best, are used in the hymnal more than once. When the congregation has become familiar with such a tune in connection with one hymn, the people then know the music for one or more additional hymns.

The Presbyterian Hymnal uses the following tunes four times:

ABBOT'S LEIGH
